A lot of mail has come our way asking for information concerning money—and for tips on how to make extra money Therefore I thought it might be a good idea to start a column that would include money-making methods and stories concerning money and financial matters that kids our age could understand and utilize

But I'm not going to do the column by myself You out there have too many good ideas for that The "Richie Rich Dollar Sense" column will be open to your comments, too. So please send them off to me and we'll print as many of them as we can.

Now to get the ball rolling, I'd like to mention a few ideas that I believe are good, sensible, profitable and easy-to-do

One of them is to buy Sunday morning papers for people in your neighborhood or apartment house Most adults like to sleep late on Sunday, but would also enjoy having the morning paper waiting for them when they get up.

What you could do is offer the service of buying the paper and delivering it to the door or leaving it at the doorstep on Sunday mornings A 25-cent charge for the service sounds acceptable

To get people, you could call them by phone or in person or leave a notice in your apartment house or local super market What you'll find—especially if you're prompt and regular—is that word of mouth will spread your success One neighbor will tell another and you may end up with a growing business

A similar idea is to help people with their laundry If you live in an apartment house, you might offer to deliver the completed laundry from the house's machines If the people in your neighborhood have their laundry done in laundromats, you might offer to pick up and deliver their laundry from there All these are services that many adults are willing to pay for so that they won't themselves be bothered.

I think either of these ideas will cause you to think of new ideas, and we'd love hearing from you about them

RICHIE RICH in The CLUB

"Oh, Richie" said Mrs Rich with a big smile on her face, "you are going to be so happy to hear what I have to tell you"

"I'm happy just to hear you say, 'hello,'" Richie answered his mother and placed a warm kiss on her cheek

"You've been accepted as a member of the Shortview Sports and Country Club!"

"Huh?"

"I said you've been accepted as a member of the Shortview Sports and Country Club"

"Oh, I heard you, Mom I just don't remember ever applying for membership"

"Oh, you didn't, dear That is, you did .through your mother Many members of my family have been members of the Shortview since it started in 1831, and as soon as I heard they were opening it for new members I had my Uncle Cashflow nominate you"

"But how did you know I wanted to join, Mom?"

"But of course you would, Richie Every person wants to become a member of a sports and country club, and the Shortview is the finest and most famous one in the country Tee hee! That's funny, the country's most famous country club"

"Tee hee Now listen, Mom, I'm not sure that I'd like to join a country club."

"But, dear, do you know who some of the members are? Why, the Von Snobbs have always been members, and the Dollarsigns and the Cashbys and the Fortunes and even the Rocketfellows Some of the most famous names in commerce and industry and government are members And you ought to see the country club itself It has everything you'd ever want in a country club"

"My friends aren't members and wouldn't be members of the club"

"Oh, I'm sure some of your friends are members or will be members of the Shortview And I'm also sure you'd meet boys you'd want to be friends with for life Richie, it's a golden opportunity and I'm just about ready to send them a check of $75,000 for your first six months membership and "

"Mom, hold it I just came home to tell you I'm going to join the Royals Athletic Club"

"The Royals? I'm not sure I remember that club, dear"

"No, I don't think you would, Mom It was just formed And it has everything I want in a club In fact I've already paid for the year's membership'

'Oh, my I'm too late I guess I should have told you so you wouldn't have joined uh, the Royals, is it?"

"Yes, Mom, it is the Royals, and I wouldn't have joined the Shortview in any case. I would only want to be a member of an athletic club that my friends belonged to."

"Hmmmm It's not any more expensive than the Shortview, is it?"

"No, Mom The yearly dues were only seventy-five cents We can get all the things we need with that 'Bye now I'm going to meet Freckles and PeeWee and the other guys of the Royals right now See you for dinner, Mom And by the way, thanks, Mom, for thinking of me for the Shortview. I love your thoughtfulness—and I love you"

"You know," she said to herself once he left the room, 'I suppose a club is a club"
